

8 Photography Projects In Your Own Backyard

The mark of a great photographer is not what equipment they have, but how well they see. Patterson teaches visual design for photography, and the first step is to really pay attention and see the underlying form of what is actually there.

You can start in your own backyard (or anywhere around you if you don't have a backyard) to develop this capacity for seeing.

<http://digital-photography-school.com/8-photo-projects-in-your-own-backyard>