

Are You Social Yet?

Posted by jcpcwvmikep

Do you share your photos on photo sharing sites? Those who do often do it for one of many different reasons: sharing with family and friends, being part of a community, or even getting feedback and critiques. Many serious photographers dismiss social sites like flickr, 500px and others like them. However, did you know that Steve McCurry, creator of one of the most legendary images to ever be featured on the cover of National Geographic, shares many of his photographs on 500px.com?

If you want exposure, you'll likely get more eyeballs on your images if you use one of these sites. It doesn't have to replace your own web site. In fact, you can even use it to complement your site. For example, I maintain my own site, but my portfolio page is on 500px.